

Hi there guys.

Hey I saw your product on the shelf of a shop the other day, and after reading that it needed NO scrubbing, scoffed to myself a little but thought, what the hey, I'll see if it can at least help out a bit. Just a little background on me. I am one of those weird people that take pleasure from having my stuff super clean. (not ALL of the time, but pretty much...) Often getting mocked by friends and strangers alike for cleaning my vehicles/bike beyond the call of duty (have even been told by my local bike shop I have a job there whenever I want due to the state that I send my Farm bike into them in).

So it was with some serious doubts that I went into using your "brush free" product. My normal routine after a ride is to yard hose, then light waterblast, then using a bucket, meguires wash and wax, and a soft brush, would spend an easy 1/2 hour on top of the other steps trying to get everything clean, then of course the dry off at the end.

Well, after coming back from the Berm Buster in Taupo this weekend with a bike almost as dirty as I've had, I thought I'd try out your stuff. I'll be honest, I still hosed it off, and gave it a light waterblast first, coz I figured you'd need all the help you could get. It was still dirty at this stage (by my standards) so doused it in pink and let it be.

Came out 10-15min later and hosed it off, waiting to see that I needed to pull out all my trusty gear and scrub it down "properly"...

WOW, all I can say is WOW!

The only places it didn't clean, were the places I had missed spraying Motomuck onto.

What a stunning product. Next time I'll have to try not doing the first 2 steps and see how it handles that, but worst case, even if I still have to do them, not having to try and squeeze a brush into places it just won't go on my bike will be awesome.

The worst thing about it all is that I actually ENJOY cleaning my bike, so you've just taken away some of the time I get to do my cleaning! The bright side of this is of course that it probably does a better job than I could do anyway....

Anyhow, just thought I'd let you know, as there are plenty of products out there that promise heaps, and deliver little, so it's real nice to find one that lives up the hype.

Thanks.

A new customer.

Jeff.